

Lorelei of the Red Mist: Planetary Romances/Leigh Brackett

Picking up where Martian Quest: The Early Brackett left off, this volume collects 12 more tales of strange adventures on other worlds from the undisputed Queen of Space Opera. Drawn from Planet Stories and Thrilling Wonder Stories pulp magazines, this tome revels in the 1946 titular collaboration with Ray Bradbury--who also contributes an original poem about Leigh Brackett as well as an essay about meeting & working with Brackett. Harry Turtledove, the modern master of alternate history provides the introduction and the book is adorned with Frank Kelly Freas vintage illustrations from the 1953 reprint of Lorelei of the Red Mist. In a review of Martian Quest: The Early Brackett, Paul di Filippo says Plainly, Brackett was growing with every story she wrote, not yet 30 years old by the volumes end, with the best yet to come. Lorelei of the Red Mist: Planetary Romances is where some of that best can found.
